Sweetville Independent School District

Dr. Bugle, Superintendent

August 8, 2015

Parents of students attending Sweetville Middle School,

Under the state Public Education Grant (PEG) program, the Texas Education Agency (TEA) is required to notify parents when campuses receive the rating of "Improvement Required." This letter serves as notification that Sweetville Middle School will placed on the PEG List for the 2015–16 school year for failing to meet the performance targets in mathematics performance.

The PEG program requires the district to notify you of this status and to provide you with the following information. Please be advised that the campus will have the opportunity to appeal this school improvement designation later this fall. However, the requirements described in this letter must be implemented for the entire school year, regardless of the outcome of the appeal.

The parents or guardians of students attending a campus identified for school improvement status have the option to request a transfer of their child to a public school in another district.

The campus will implement specific strategies to address the reason the campus has been identified as requiring improvement. Sweetville Middle School will implement intensive and sustained professional development, including professional learning communities (PLCs) and changes to the master schedule specific to math instruction.

In addition, the district will provide assistance to the campus to address the reasons for identification on the PEG List. Our regional education service center will assist campus staff in analyzing test data through PLCs.

You may become involved in addressing the reasons the campus has been identified for requiring improvement by (1) participating in parent involvement activities that help you learn how to increase your child's achievement level and (2) attending parent-teacher conferences.

Sincerely,

Dr. Bugle

Dr. Bugle Superintendent

Re: Professional Learning Communities (PLCs)

Thank you for your participation in data feedback meetings where we reviewed the reasons for the campus rating. I believe that your continuing work to align your campus plan, budget and staff development with campus needs will move student achievement forward.

While only Sweetville Middle School is listed on the PEG List, we have decided to implement professional learning communities (PLCs) on each campus in keeping with our district mission and vision. Please begin building the foundation of PLCs with your leadership team and site-based decision-making team. We will begin implementing them at the start of the fall semester.

Consider the following building blocks of a professional learning community before you arrive at our first roundtable meeting with your leadership team and department heads:

- 1. Why do we exist?
- 2. What do we hope to become?
- 3. How must we behave in order to make our shared vision a reality?
- 4. What steps will we take first and when will we begin implementation?

For your reference, an article describing PLCs is attached. Review this with your staff to increase their awareness of PLCs and understanding of how they improve teacher practice.

Professional Learning Communities

EDUCATORS WORK TOGETHER TOWARD A SHARED PURPOSE — IMPROVED STUDENT LEARNING

By Shirley M. Hord

 NSDC's scholar laureate. Hord has conducted research on educational change and professional learning communities in positions at the university and classroom level and as the former scholar emeritus at SEDL. You can contact her at Shirley.hord@nsdc.org.

We can all agree that the purpose of schools is student learning, and that the most significant factor in whether students learn well is teaching quality. Further, teaching quality is improved through continuous professional learning. The context most supportive of the learning of professionals is the professionals is the professional learning community (Hord & Hirsh, 2008). Here I define what happens in the professional learning community and what makes such communities possible.

The Learning

First, what is the community learning? "It is vital ... that staff members understand the linkage between learning with students in the classroom and learning with colleagues" (Lambert, 2003, p.21). Members of the community thoughtfully study multiple sources of student data to discover where students are performing well, and thus where staff members can celebrate.

Importantly, the areas that receive the staff's most meticulous attention are the areas where students do not perform successfully. The staff members prioritize these student learning needs, and define one area to which they give immediate attention. The staff collectively takes responsibility to learn new content, strategies or approaches to increase its effectiveness in teaching to these problem areas. Learning is not an add-on to the role of the professional. It is a habitual activity where the group learns how to learn together continuously.

Here is a small example: In my first fieldwork assignment in 1986 for the Southwest Educational Development Laboratory, I supported the school improvement efforts of an 18-member faculty of a small rural school. As we studied and interpreted item analysis data, the young science teacher leaped to his feet and loudly proclaimed, "They didn't get it." After a long pause, he added, "Next time, I will have to learn how to teach that differently." This young teacher got it! And he got it through examining data in concert with his peers.

The Community

There is a second aspect in working to define a community of professional learners: the community itself. "The term 'community' has almost come to mean any gathering of people in a social setting. But real communities ask more of us. ... They assume a focus on a shared purpose, mutual regard and caring and an insistence on integrity and truthfulness. To elevate our work in schools to the level required by a true community, we must direct our energies and attention toward something greater than ourselves" (Lambert, 2003, p. 4).

The most common teaching/learning pattern for adults and children today emphasizes individual learner work flowing from an instructor's lecture. This teacher-centered style, where the teacher pontificates about a topic or skill, is followed by directions from the teacher for the adult learner's assigned application task. Changing this teaching/learning process from instructor-centered to learner-centered (whether for children or adults) constitutes a fundamental change.

The professional learning community models the self-initiating learner working in concert with peers. This is a constructivist view of the learning process (Brooks & Brooks, 1993). As Lambert notes, "Professional development designs that attend to both teacher and student learning might use what I refer to as the 'reciprocal processes of constructive learning.' By this, I mean learning that is mutual and interactive, thereby investing in the growth of all participants" (2003, p. 22). Constructivism recognizes learning as the process of making sense of information and experiences. Learning constructively requires an environment in which learners work collegially and is situated in authentic activities and context. Burns, Menchaca and Dimock (2001) identified six principles as important to constructivist learning theory:

- 1. Learners bring unique prior knowledge, experience and beliefs to a learning situation.
- 2. Knowledge is constructed uniquely and individually, in multiple ways, through a variety of authentic tools, resources, experiences and contexts.
- 3. Learning is both an active and a reflective process.
- Learning is a developmental process of accommodation, assimilation or rejection to construct new conceptual structures, meaningful representations or new mental models.
- 5. Social interaction introduces multiple perspectives through reflection, collaboration, negotiation and shared meaning.
- 6. Learning is internally controlled and mediated by the learner.

These six principles of constructivism are closely connected to the concepts and dimensions of the professional learning community.

Professional Learning Community's Relationship to Constructivism

The professional learning community is defined by what the words state:

- Community: Individuals coming together in a group in order to interact in meaningful activities to learn deeply with colleagues about an identified topic, to develop shared meaning and identify shared purposes related to the topic.
- Professionals: Those individuals who are responsible and accountable for delivering an effective instructional program to students so that they each learn well. Professionals show up with a passionate commitment to their own learning and that of students, and share responsibility to this purpose.

• Learning: The activity in which professionals engage in order to enhance their knowledge and skills.

The professional learning community encourages constructivism by providing the setting and the working relationships demanded of constructivist learning. Six research-based dimensions of professional learning communities are:

- Shared beliefs, values and a vision of what the school should be;
- Shared and supportive leadership where power, authority and decisionmaking are distributed across the community;
- Supportive structural conditions, such as time, place and resources;
- Supportive relational conditions that include respect and caring among the community, with trust as an imperative;
- Collective learning, intentionally determined, to address student needs and the increased effectiveness of the professionals; and
- Peers sharing their practice to gain feedback, and thus individual and organizational improvement.

The professional learning community, whose purpose is the learning of the community's members, models constructivist learning. When the community operates according to the research base on professional community learning, this learner-centered environment for educators results in important outcomes for teachers and administrators and significant achievement for their students.

Conditions for Success

What does a community of professionals need to implement constructivist learning?

Community membership. First consider the community members. Two ways to organize the professional community's work are of particular interest. One is the regular weekly (or more frequent) meetings of the grade-level or academic subject-matter teams. In these small groups, members focus on their student's needs, their curriculum and instructional practices that appropriately address their students. The team's learning focuses directly on these students. A parallel structure is the whole staff meeting at least monthly, more often if possible, to study school data, define goals and determine what learning they need to achieve these goals. They must also decide how to go about their learning. They share and discuss their team-group learning. This structure provides common purpose for the school.

Leadership. The principal's role is important in launching the communities' meetings. Defining the purpose for these gatherings is vital, and the principal's leadership in supporting and leading collaborative dialogue about students' needs and how staff's learning can contribute to student learning is key to the effort.

Time for learning. Also important is the principal's role in soliciting teacher's cooperation in finding or creating time for meetings. In one possible model, the district office creates a schedule where all schools' instructional day would be extended by 15 to 20 minutes four days a week and adjourned after lunch one day week. With this model, the district maintains student instructional time and average daily attendance but dismisses students early on one day. The staff is free of any obligations other than to meet and learn together. Schools and districts have found other ways to access time. However, advice from the book Eat, Pray, Love playfully but accurately that "time when pursued like a bandit — will behave like one" (Gilbert, 2006). Helping parents and other members of the school community understand the need to adjust the school schedule to enable educator learning is another task for the principal and teachers.

Space for learning. Principals must identify space that can accommodate the entire faculty. One principal rotated the meetings around to every teacher's classroom. Not only did this provide space, but teachers of all grade levels and subjects gained insight into their fellow teachers' work. The visitors noted evidence of their colleagues' teaching practices and artifacts of student learning.

Data use support. Reviewing, studying and interpreting data is the foundation of professional learning communities. Someone must be responsible for organizing the various sources of data in formats that are user-friendly. This can be a formidable job for smaller districts and schools with limited personnel. Eventually, all teachers should learn how to do this task so that they have ready access to current data.

Distributed leadership. Of equal importance to guiding a professional learning community is the principal's willingness to share power and authority. As the staff learns to use appropriate conversation modes, select the best decision-making model for their needs, and engage in conflict resolution, the principal removes himself or herself as the "sage on stage" to become the "guide on the side," working in democratic participation with the staff.

The Vision Becomes Reality

Staff members, with their school leaders, are using data to make decisions about what to learn, how to learn it, how to transfer and apply it to their classrooms, and how to assess its effectiveness. In doing so, professional learning community members operate as constructivist learners, making collegial decisions and planning self-generated learning. In addition to acting constructively in their learning, they demonstrate professional behavior — consistently increasing their effectiveness through continuous learning.

Employee Complaint Form — Level I

Name: Susan Martin

Address: 123 South First Street, Sweetville

Position/Department/Campus: Middle School Chairperson/Teacher/Sweetville MS

If you will be represented by another person, please identify the person representing you:

Name: _____ Telephone: _____

Please describe the decision or circumstances causing your complaint:

Ms. Akon, the principal of Sweetville MS, has decided to hire teachers with little or no experience for planning for PLC implementation and staff development. This act is clearly age discrimination since the newer teachers are all younger and do not require a daily rate of pay that is equal to that of the more experienced teachers on the campus. This attempt to save money has resulted in ageism and is clearly a violation of board policy.

What was the date of the decision or circumstances causing your complaint? August 22, 2015

Please explain how you have been harmed by this decision or circumstance:

Not only have I been made to feel useless due to my age, I have also been denied pay for services that I am entitled to as a chairperson. I should sit on the committee for the PLC planning and for curriculum writing over the summer months and into the school year. The logical choice for the aforementioned events is a group of both experienced and new teachers in order to get a wide range of input and perspective.

Please describe and efforts you have made to resolve your complaint informally and the responses to your efforts:

I called the principal and director of curriculum to voice my concerns about the possible hiring of younger teachers in an effort to save money. I discussed this with them and asked to be placed on the PLC planning committee, but was told that the committee was already formed. Neither gave me an answer that was satisfactory.

With whom did you communicate?

Principal of Sweetville Middle School; Director for Curriculum for Sweetville ISD

On what date? August 22, 2015

Please describe the outcome or remedy you seek for this complaint:

I would like to be placed on the PLC planning committee and be compensated at my current daily rate of pay for the work I do while on the committee.

Please note: A complaint form that is incomplete in any material way may be dismissed, but may be refiled with all the required information if the refiling is within the designated time for filing a complaint. Attach to this form any documents you believe will support the complaint; if unavailable when you submit this form, they may be presented no later than the Level I conference. Please keep a copy of the completed form and any supporting documentation for your records.

Response to Level I Complaint

August 28, 2015

Dear Ms. Martin of 123 South First St., Sweetville:

Having considered the complaints we discussed in our Level I conference on August 27, I have decided on the following remedies to your complaint:

• Teachers have been hired to serve on the PLC committee without regard to their years of experience or salary.

For your other concerns, I am unable to provide the remedy you seek.

 The planning committee for PLCs have already been formed and the members are meeting to plan for the coming year. I was unaware of your desire to serve on the committee until I received your Level I complaint. I took requests from any teacher interested in serving on the committee via email for a two-week period in August. I did not receive a request from you. I sent a reminder email two days before the deadline. Request denied.

Ms. Akon

Please explain specifically how you disagree with the outcome at Level I:

The committee has met only one time to plan for implementation of PLCs and the principal was well aware of my desire to be on the committee and to write curriculum this summer. She claims she had no knowledge of my desire to serve on the PLC planning committee until she received my complaint. This is untrue.
